

ABSTRACT

A method for controlling exposure energy on a wafer substrate, with a feedback process control signal of wafer thickness critical dimension, and with a feed forward process control signal of a compensation amount that compensates for thickness variations of an interlayer of the wafer substrate.

5